"Pakistan Oral & Dental Journal" Strives and provides vast array of advanced professional articles to enrich the knowledge of its readers and to keep them updated, so that they in turn contribute towards the professional uplift.

We have witnessed tremendous progress in technical fields in all aspects of dentistry during the past three decades, hand in hand there is progressive decline in our attitudes.

Claims or implications of perfection referred by the teachers in dental institutes is yet another lamentable trait. Generally speaking many times in the classroom only those cases are shown which have dramatically produced better results. It is of value also to show those cases, which have turned out not so well. Each one of us has its own share of failures. It takes a bit of courage to admit it, but the result is that true education takes place.

To be useful and equal partners in the new world order of the twenty first century, it is imperative that persons in dental profession acquire professional skills at par with international standards. No group of professional afford to insulate itself from the explosion of technological development taking place in dentistry in other countries.

Societies and professional groups that resist change write their own epitaph.
